Programme overview

Objectives

The main goal of the course is to develop legal communication skills and foster student collaboration and teamwork in an international context, bringing together students involved in legal clinics and law studies.

The programme will combine the teaching of EU migration law with the development of transversal competencies, focusing on ethical and civic skills in the framework of law clinics.

By participating, students will gain a deep understanding of the legal conditions adopted by European countries, focusing on topics related to migration issues.

Students will also develop strong teamwork skills and practical English language proficiency.

Final product

Participants will have to identify, across the various subjects, some of the legally relevant issues that hold practical importance, considering their significant effects on migrant populations (social, economic, sociological dimensions) and compile them into a preliminary report (5-6 pages), outlining the identified advancements and unsolved challenges present in both community and national regulations.

Workload

The overall workload is 75 hours, split as follows:

- 15 hours of synchronous online sessions;
- 30 hours of self-study and teamwork;
- 30 hours of onsite activities, involving well-established decisions of European and national courts, reading and analysis of legal literature and preparation of a final product.

Teaching staff

The courses will be taught in English by teachers from Nicolaus Copernicus University, University of Antwerp, Universidad Carlos III de Madrid, University of Rijeka and Vytautas Magnus University.

Detailed programme content

Online component

18 March – 29 April 2026

The online module is composed of theoretical and practical parts. During each encounter the particularities of each clinic will be presented.

The main aim of the workshop is to develop skills allowing critical assessment of the jurisprudence of national and supra-national courts through the lens of a comparative view.

All learning resources will be available on the teams learning platform and synchronous sessions will be held on the mentioned platform. The online module will require a previous preparation: the slides and other materials will be sent a week in advance, so that students can become familiar with the issues and they will also be provided with reading materials. The virtual component aims to prepare students for the practical, workshop-format classes organised in the physical component in Antwerp. To that end students will be divided in groups. Each group will prepare one topic on which they will also take the lead in the Antwerp sessions.

All meetings are held at CET time zone.

In the same way, the workshops will have an instrumental function, as phases for the development of a final product, such as a guide/report or collective opinion that could be published as a result of the BIP in the alliance.

Work materials will be sent two weeks before the start of the on-site activities, so that students can previously study the topics on which the workshops will focus.
